

Western LAMPAC is an association of electric utilities and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW). For more than 40 years, LAMPAC has represented the mutual interests of its membership in matters related to public affairs affecting the utility industry. This membership includes more than 20 IBEW local union organizations representing more than 100,000 bargaining unit members. The utilities involved are owned by governmental entities or are publicly traded companies with several million shareholders serving 11 western states and covering approximately 35 percent of the geographical area of the contiguous continental United States.

LAMPAC was formed as a cooperative venture among a number of utilities and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The membership has been made up of the regional IBEW officials, Business Managers, and officials of the various union locals along with governmental affairs, labor relations, and executive management employees of the participating electric utilities. The IBEW has been a major supporter of the group as a forum for their officials to mix with the influential executive management of the various companies.

The formal mission of LAMPAC is to inform and educate its members on public affairs matters affecting them and to influence, where possible, the shaping of potential legislation. The informal mission of the organization is to promote positive labor and management relations through cooperative efforts.

A portion of each conference is dedicated to promoting social interaction with such activities as receptions, dinners and golf outings. These events provide an excellent opportunity for attendees to network in an informal setting and to meet many of the speakers presenting at the meeting.
